(2) LEARNING OUTCOMES

Learning outcomes

The course learning outcomes, specific knowledge, skills and competences of an appropriate level, which the students will acquire with the successful completion of the course are described.

Consult Appendix A

- Description of the level of learning outcomes for each qualifications cycle, according to the Qualifications Framework of the European Higher Education Area
- Descriptors for Levels 6, 7 & 8 of the European Qualifications Framework for Lifelong Learning and Appendix B
- Guidelines for writing Learning Outcomes

After the completion of this course, the student should be able:

- to use the methods and theoretical tools of typology and comparative linguistics,
- to analyze language data through a comparative lens,
- to identify systematic patterns in the grammatical systems of natural languages,
- to identify implicational and non-implicational universals,

- to classify languages into categories according to their structural characteristics,
- to use the relevant literature as well as electronic tools and databases that assist typological research,
- to describe the patterns languages tend to follow with regard to, among others, phonemic inventories, syllable structure, suprasegmental features, word formation and inflection, grammatical categories, word order, and subject and object marking.

General Competences

Taking into consideration the general competences that the degree-holder must acquire (as these appear in the Diploma Supplement and appear below), at which of the following does the course aim?

Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology	Project planning and management
Adapting to new situations	Respect for difference and multiculturalism
Decision-making	Respect for the natural environment
Working independently	Showing social, professional and ethical responsibility and sensitivity to gender issues
Team work	Criticism and self-criticism
Working in an international environment	Production of free, creative and inductive thinking
Working in an interdisciplinary environment	.....
Production of new research ideas	Others...
	.....

- Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology
- Working independently
- Team work
- Production of new research ideas
- Production of free, creative and inductive thinking

(3) SYLLABUS

This course introduces the student to the goals and methods of typology, the linguistic field that focuses on the comparative study of language systems and their classification on the basis of structural characteristics. Special emphasis is put on language universals and on how they can be identified. Moreover, the students are presented with indicative typological data from all levels of linguistic analysis (phonology, morphology, syntax).

(4) TEACHING and LEARNING METHODS - EVALUATION
